

LEADER AS CONVENER

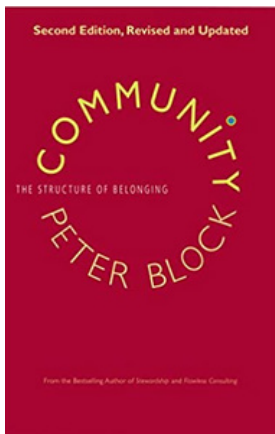

Inspiring transformation one meeting at a time

A 3-Part Workshop Series

The way we gather matters. It makes no difference whether you come together in person or virtually; for a staff meeting, a board meeting, or a community meeting; the way we acknowledge and engage those in the room can either make or break outcomes.

Leadership that revolves around control, dominance, and an assertion of power is obsolete. For leaders to serve their teams, communities, and organizations better, they must work to develop the skills to engage people in new ways that overcome isolation and deepen human connection.

Leader as Convener is a program that invites you to explore how to inspire deep and meaningful transformation every time you bring people together.

The methodology presented is inspired by Six Conversations that Matter® from Peter Block's renowned book, Community: The Structure of Belonging.

For more information on how to bring Leader As Convener into your organization or to attend a public workshop, please visit www.designedlearning.com or call +1 (248) 701-5928.

This workshop is for you if you...

- need to bring people together and engage them authentically
- want to foster accountability and ownership within your team members
- wish to create more value for your team, community, and/or organization
- care about crafting invitations, asking the right questions, and building trust
- are tired of dated and ineffective methods of holding meetings
- aim to foster a sense of belonging for the people around you
- are okay with checking the power at the door
- serve as a leader (formally or informally)

Program offerings & design:

- One 3.5-hour virtual session per week over the course of three weeks
- Practical application to try out between sessions
- Two post-workshop coaching sessions to enhance your day-to-day work

“As an executive leader, learning the six conversations, which are at the center of the Leader As Convener program, was exactly the growth that I needed at this time in my professional career. Already, this method is helping me build stronger connections with my colleagues and our business clients. I now feel more confident leading meetings with a new purpose and plan for building collaboration and reaching collective impact.”

Keith Hickman, Executive Director of Collective Impact, IIRP Graduate School
